Aesica Pharmaceuticals Ltd

At OSE, we understand that transporting healthcare products is a delicate process that requires a rigorous and specialist logistical approach.

For 20 years, we have provided an essential link for the pharmaceutical industry, transporting everything from trial samples and vital medicines to capital equipment, straight to the heart of medical establishments.

An established worldwide airline and distribution network

We have decades of experience dealing with major worldwide airlines, allowing us to confidently advise you on the most appropriate and cost-effective air freight option to meet the requirements of your sensitive and fragile pharmaceutical consignments. Our established distribution network means that we can provide you with a premium service at competitive rates for morning and evening flight departures. Our in-house specialist customs clearance team can assist you in preparing all necessary documentation.

Temperature control you can rely on

We specialise in the preservation, storage and transportation of high-value pharmaceutical products that are sensitive to changing atmospheric conditions, ensuring a consistent temperature throughout the distribution process and supplying temperature-controlled and refrigerated vehicles to meet your specifications. With the utmost care taken at every stage of your consignment's journey, our extensive team of professional drivers are all ADR-qualified and are meticulous in the handling of bio-products and equipment for medical use.

An air freight service that suits your timescale

We can work with you to create a route planning strategy to get your temperature-sensitive goods to their destination in the shortest possible timeframe. Whatever your timescale or budget, we have the ideal air freight service to suit you. Whether door-to-door, import or export, express or economy the international air freight services from OSE European are designed to meet your specific needs. Our cutting-edge, precision satellite tracking technology used for all consignments across the UK and Europe ensures that you can stay updated on the exact location of your goods at any given point of the journey, providing complete peace of mind from start to finish.
